OFFICE OF THE UNITED STATES
TRADE REPRESENTATIVE*Proposed Revocation of Korea's
Identification as a Priority Foreign Country in Telecommunications Trade

AGENCY: Office of the United States Trade Representative.

ACTION: Notice of proposed action and request for public comments.

SUMMARY: On July 26, 1996, the United States Trade Representative (USTR) identified the Republic of Korea as a "priority foreign country" (PFC) under section 1374 of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 (the Act) because certain acts, policies, and practices denied mutually advantageous market opportunities to U.S. suppliers of telecommunications goods and services. As a result of negotiations following this identification, Korea has made measurable progress towards the elimination of the objectionable acts, policies, or practices which were the subject of the specific negotiating objectives determined by the USTR under section 1375 of the Act. The Office of the USTR seeks comments on its proposal to revoke Korea's PFC identification on August 11, 1997.

DATES: Comments are due by August 8, 1997.

ADDRESSES: Comments may be submitted to Ms. Sybia Harrison, Office of the General Counsel, Room 223, Office of the U.S. Trade Representative, 600 17th Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20508.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Seen Murphy (202-395-6813), Office of Asia and the Pacific, or Joanna McIntosh (202-395-7203), Office of the General Counsel, Office of the U.S. Trade Representative, 600 17th Street, NW, Washington, D.C. 20508.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Section 1374 of the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 (19 U.S.C. 3103) provides that the USTR may identify as a "priority foreign country" those countries which maintain barriers that deny U.S. telecommunications products and services mutually advantageous market opportunities.

On July 26, 1996, the USTR identified Korea as a PFC as a result of Korea's failure to eliminate barriers that deny mutually advantageous market opportunities for U.S. providers of telecommunications goods and services and that are not covered by the existing agreements with Korea. 61 Fed. Reg. 40279 (Aug. 1, 1996). The barriers included, but were not limited to the Korean Government's intervention in procurements by private Korean companies, improper promotion of domestic manufacturing of high technology telecommunications products, and limitations on foreign ownership of telecommunications services. As described below, over the last twelve months, Korea has conducted multilateral and bilateral negotiations with the United States and made measurable progress in eliminating the objectionable acts, policies, and practices which were the subject of the specific negotiating objectives determined by USTR:

(1) Korea participated in the successful conclusion of the Information Technology Agreement (ITA), negotiated under the auspices of the World Trade Organization (WTO), which was concluded in December 1996. Under the ITA, Korea will eliminate in stages tariffs and customs duties on an agreed package of information technology products, including telecommunications equipment. Korea will reduce tariffs to zero by the year 2000 for all covered products, except for thirteen items for which tariffs will be reduced to zero by 2004. These tariff eliminations will increase market access in Korea for U.S. suppliers of telecommunications goods.

(2) Korea also participated in the successful conclusion in February 1997 of the WTO basic telecommunications services negotiations. Beginning in January 1998, Korea will allow increased foreign ownership of domestic telecommunications services companies and adopt a number of transparent and pro-competitive regulatory principles. These commitments will enhance competition in the Korean telecommunications services sector and provide new opportunities for U.S. investors and services operators, as well as equipment suppliers.

(3) The Korean Ministry of Information and Communication (MIC) issued a policy statement on July 14, 1997 clarifying recent revisions of government practices, procedures and objectives in the telecommunications sector. The policy statement provides guidance to domestic and foreign telecommunications goods and services suppliers in Korea and enhances transparency by correcting misperceptions regarding the treatment of foreign suppliers. The specific policies embodied in the MIC policy statement include: national treatment and non-discrimination for foreign companies; government non-intervention in private sector procurement; transparent procedures on services licensing, equipment certification and type approval; foreign ownership limitations; the protection of intellectual property and proprietary information; technology transfer; satellite services authorization; pro-competitive regulatory measures; and the evolving role of the Korean Communications Commission to further promote and protect fair competition in the Korean market.

The United States will continuously monitor Korea's adherence to the above commitments and will enforce them, as appropriate, under U.S. trade laws and applicable WTO procedures to ensure effective implementation.
