BILLING CODE 3410–15–P

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COMMISSION

29 CFR Part 1614

RIN 3046–AA66

Federal Sector Equal Employment Opportunity

AGENCY: Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC).

ACTION: Notice of proposed rulemaking.

SUMMARY: The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission is proposing revisions to its federal sector complaint processing regulations to implement recommendations made by the Chairman's Federal Sector Workgroup. The Commission proposes to require that agencies establish or make available alternative dispute resolution (ADR) programs during the EEO pre-complaint process. The Commission proposes revisions to the counseling process, the bases for dismissal of complaints, and procedures for requesting a hearing. The Commission also proposes to provide administrative judges with the authority to issue dismissals and final decisions on complaints. The Commission proposes a number of changes to the class complaint procedures, including authorizing administrative judges to issue final decisions on class certification and requiring that administrative judges determine whether a settlement agreement is fair and reasonable. The Commission proposes changes to the appeals procedures to provide agencies the right to appeal an administrative judge's final decision, to revise the appellate briefing schedule, to establish different standards of review for agency final decisions and administrative judges' final decisions, and to revise the process for seeking reconsideration of a decision on appeal. Finally, the Commission proposes to amend the remedies section of the regulation to permit administrative judges to award attorney's fees and to provide for payment of attorney's fees for all services provided by an attorney throughout the equal employment opportunity (EEO) process, including counseling.

DATES: Comments on the notice of proposed rulemaking must be received on or before April 21, 1998.

ADDRESSES: Written comments should be submitted to Frances M. Hart, Executive Officer, Executive Secretariat, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, 1801 L Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20507. SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Introduction

As part of an ongoing effort to evaluate and improve the effectiveness of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's operations, the Chairman established the Federal Sector Workgroup to review the federal sector equal employment opportunity process. The Workgroup was composed of representatives from offices throughout the Commission. The Workgroup focused on the effectiveness of the EEOC in enforcing the statutes that prohibit workplace discrimination in the federal government, namely: section 717 of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination against applicants and employees based on race, color, religion, sex and national origin; section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, which prohibits employment discrimination on the basis of disability; section 15 of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, which prohibits employment discrimination based on age; and the Equal Pay Act, which prohibits sex-based wage discrimination.

The Workgroup's review evaluated the Commission's administrative processes governing its enforcement responsibilities in the federal sector and developed recommendations to improve its effectiveness. In addition, the review sought to implement the goals of Vice President Gore's National Performance Review (NPR), including eliminating unnecessary layers of review, delegating decision-making authority to front-line employees, developing partnership between management and labor, seeking stakeholder input when making decisions, and measuring performance by results.

The Federal Sector Workgroup issued a report entitled ''The Federal Sector EEO Process * * * Recommendations for Change'' in May 1997. The report contains numerous recommendations for changing the federal sector complaint process, including changes to the Part 1614 regulations, changes to EEOC's Management Directive 110 which contains additional guidance and instructions on the federal complaint process, and changes to EEOC's internal procedures.

The Commission proposes to amend Part 1614 to implement the regulatory recommendations. The proposed changes, which are discussed in greater detail below, address the continuing perception of unfairness and inefficiency in the federal sector complaint process. In addition, the proposals accomplish the National Performance Review goals of removing unnecessary layers of review and delegating decision-making authority to front-line employees.

EEOC spent over a year and a half in the development of the federal sector NPRM. During that time period, EEOC consulted extensively with all stakeholders in the federal sector process, very much including the other federal agencies. On April 22, 1996, prior to the development of any recommendations, the EEOC's Federal Sector Workgroup held a meeting with federal EEO and Civil Rights personnel organized by the President of the Council of Federal and Civil Rights Executives. At that time the Council supported EEOC's interest in making the administrative judge decisions final and eliminating agency final decisions following those decisions. The Council subsequently changed its view on this question. On May 21, 1996, then-Chairman Casellas wrote to the EEO Directors of all departments and agencies requesting their written comment on a number of subjects related to the federal sector complaint process. We received comments from 27 agencies, all of which were fully considered in developing the recommendations contained in the Workgroup's report. On September 26, 1997, the Workgroup held a briefing for EEO Directors on the Workgroup's recommendations.

The Commission coordinated this proposed regulation with all federal agencies pursuant to Exec. Order No. 12067 (1978). A number of comments were received from agencies, which included helpful suggestions to improve the proposed regulation as well as criticisms of essential elements of the proposals. The Commission has included a discussion of its proposal, the rationale for the changes, as well as the criticisms of the agencies, in this statement of Supplementary Information and has made certain changes to the proposal. It prefers to decide whether or how to make other changes to this proposal after the benefit of public comment. Federal agencies are, of course, the entities whose conduct would be regulated by these proposals and making decisions based only on their input, without having the opportunity to consider the input of other stakeholders, including complaining parties and their representatives, would be insufficient. The Commission will seriously consider the agency comments in conjunction with the public comments. The Commission will retain the comments received from the agencies during the coordination period in the rulemaking file and will consider and address those comments in the final rule.

In proposing these changes, the Commission seeks to serve two different yet intertwined purposes: first, to ensure that the process for federal employee complaints is fair and is perceived to be fair, and second, to make the process more efficient by eliminating unnecessary layers, dealing expeditiously with meritless claims and by delegating authority to front-line employees.

Alternative Dispute Resolution

The Commission proposes to amend section 1614.102 to require all agencies to establish or make available an alternative dispute resolution (ADR) program for the EEO pre-complaint process. The required pre-complaint ADR program would be in addition to the provisions in the current regulation that encourage the use of ADR at all stages of the complaint process. Agencies would be free to develop the programs that best suit their particular needs. While many agencies have adopted the mediation model as their ADR initiative, other resolution techniques would be acceptable, provided that they conform to the core principles set forth in EEOC's policy statement on ADR, which will be contained in Management Directive 110. Although ADR is believed to be most effective at the early stages of a dispute, agencies may continue their ADR efforts at any stage in the process, including after the formal complaint has been filed. An effective ADR program will serve both goals set out by the Commission. By resolving complaints early on, ADR will make the process more efficient. ADR will also serve to make the process fairer, by giving complainants an alternative to the counseling process that has been criticized by agency officials and employee representatives.

The Commission also proposes changes to section 1614.105, which covers pre-complaint processing, to require that counselors advise aggrieved persons that they may choose between participation in the ADR program offered by the agency and the traditional counseling activities provided for in the current regulation. If a matter is not resolved during ADR or during traditional counseling activities, the counselor will conduct a final interview and the aggrieved person may file a formal complaint. As noted above, agencies would be free to establish the type of ADR program they offer during the counseling period as long as it is consistent with the ADR program core principles set out by EEOC. Before aggrieved persons make a choice between counseling and ADR, they will have an initial counseling session in which counselors must fully inform them about their rights and the choice between the counseling process and the ADR program. Counselors must also inform aggrieved persons that if the ADR process does not result in a resolution of the dispute, they will receive a final interview and have the right to file a formal complaint. If the aggrieved person chooses to participate in the agency's ADR program, the role of the counselor would be limited to advising that person of his or her rights and responsibilities in the EEO complaint process, as set forth currently in section 1614.105(b). Counselors would not be required, in those instances, to attempt to resolve the dispute, but would not be precluded from doing so, if they believe a matter could be resolved quickly.

Many agencies who submitted comments on the draft revisions when it was coordinated under Exec. Order No. 12067 (1978) welcomed Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) at the pre-complaint process stating that ADR would result in an early resolution of many cases and create a positive view of the EEO process. A number of agencies suggested that not all cases are appropriate for ADR. Rather, these agencies requested that they should have the flexibility to establish what type of matter or circumstance would be eligible for ADR. Several agencies also requested that consideration be given to the practical difficulties of creating an ADR program, and accordingly, that ample time be provided to them to obtain the necessary expertise, personnel and funds for ADR. An effective date will be included in the final rule and the governing management directive.

Under the proposed regulations, agencies would be free to develop ADR programs that would best serve their particular needs and unique circumstances. The EEOC encourages creativity and flexibility in establishing ADR programs. This would certainly encompass an array of ADR programs. Agencies with limited funds and resources could use the services, in whole or in part, of another agency, a volunteer organization or other resources to provide for their ADR programs. Keeping with our emphasis on flexibility, an agency could exclude circumstances or matters that it believes are not appropriate for its ADR program. The Commission does not anticipate that ADR will be used in connection with every complaint. For example, agencies may exclude class allegations from its ADR program. As circumstances and needs change within a particular agency, it could modify its ADR program. However, it is essential that all agency ADR programs comply with the spirit of the EEOC's policy statement on the core principles of ADR. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's Alternative Dispute Resolution Policy Statement (July 17, 1995). Management Directive 110 (MD 110) will provide further information and amplify these core principles.

Some agencies urged that the regulations should clarify the precise roles and responsibilities of the person responsible for conducting ADR during the pre-complaint process and the EEO counselor, for example, whether the mediator or counselor will complete the counselor's report if mediation or other means of ADR fails. These concerns and other questions raised by the agencies about how ADR and EEO counseling will coexist will be explained in MD 110. Each agency will have discretion to develop its own procedures in accordance with the regulation and MD 110. With this flexibility, there will most likely not be uniformity among agencies in the precise roles and responsibilities of EEO counselors and persons conducting ADR activities.

Dismissals

The Commission proposes to amend section 1614.107 to remove one basis for dismissal of EEO complaints and add two new bases for dismissal. The Commission proposes to eliminate the provision in section 1614.107(h) that permits agencies to dismiss complaints for failure to accept a certified offer of full relief. The full relief dismissal policy was premised on the view that adjudication of a claim is unnecessary if the agency is willing to make the complainant whole. The regulatory process, however, has been criticized because complainants are placed in the position of risking dismissal of their complaints if they do not believe the offer of their opposing party is an offer of full relief. If a complainant makes the wrong assessment of the offer and EEOC decides on appeal that the agency did offer full relief, the complainant is precluded from proceeding with the complaint or from accepting the offer. In addition, difficulties assessing what constitutes full relief increased when, as a result of the Civil Rights Act of 1991, damages became available to federal employees. Unless the agency offers the full amount of damages permitted under the statutory caps in the law, it is virtually impossible to assess whether the agency has offered full relief. The Commission found that offers of full relief must address compensatory damages, where appropriate. Jackson v. USPS, Appeal No. 01923399 (1992); Request No. 05930306 (1993).

During coordination of EEOC's proposals pursuant to Exec. Order No. 12067, some agencies agreed with EEOC's position that full relief dismissals have become rare since compensatory damages became available to federal employees. Other agencies recommended that EEOC revise the procedure to permit an independent review and certification of full relief offers by EEOC, arguing that certification of offers by EEOC would minimize the risk complainants must now take in determining on their own whether an agency's offer constitutes full relief. Finally, some agencies simply disagreed with the proposal to eliminate the full relief dismissal provision, arguing that they continue to use it in some cases. As noted above, without certification of full relief offers by EEOC, complainants are in the unfortunate position of trying to evaluate whether the agencies they believe discriminated against them have truly offered them all the relief they would be entitled to in a federal court, and jeopardizing their whole case if they decide in error. The Commission has determined that it would not be a wise use of our limited resources at this time to create a certification procedure for full relief offers. In response to agency comments, though, as more fully explained below, the Commission has added a provision permitting agencies to make an ''offer of resolution'' in a case. The offer of resolution is similar, but not identical, to the procedure under Rule 68 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure for an offer of judgment. Hence, for all of the reasons set forth above, the Commission proposes eliminating the regulatory provision permitting agencies to dismiss complaints for failure to accept a certified offer of full relief.

The Commission proposes to add dismissal provisions permitting agencies to dismiss complaints for two reasons. First, the Commission proposes to permit agencies to dismiss complaints that allege dissatisfaction with the processing of a previously filed complaint (commonly called spin-off complaints). EEOC's regulations at 29 CFR Part 1613, which were superseded by 29 CFR Part 1614 in 1992, expressly permitted complainants to file separate complaints alleging dissatisfaction with agencies' processing of their original complaints. 29 CFR 1613.262 (1991). The procedure resulted in the filing of multiple spin-off complaints. The Commission recognized the need to limit these complaints, and did not include the Part 1613 provision in Part 1614. Guidance was provided in Management Directive 110. Complainants continued, however, to file spin-off complaints. Any alleged unfairness or discrimination in the processing of a complaint can—and must—be raised during the processing of the underlying complaint and there is ample authority to deal with such allegations in that process. There is no provision in either the regulations or the management directive permitting the filing of a separate complaint on this issue. Accordingly, separate complaints should be dismissed. The Commission proposes to add the dismissal provision permitting dismissal of spin-off complaints to ensure that a balance is maintained between fair and nondiscriminatory agency processing of complaints and the need to eliminate multiple filing of burdensome complaints about the manner in which an original complaint was processed.

In conjunction with this regulatory change, the Commission will issue companion guidance in Management Directive 110 addressing the procedures agencies must follow to resolve allegations of dissatisfaction with the complaints process quickly. Individuals who are dissatisfied with the processing of a complaint will be advised to bring this dissatisfaction to the attention of the official responsible for the complaint, whether it be an investigator, an EEOC administrative judge, or the Commission's Office of Federal Operations on appeal. The allegation of dissatisfaction, and any appropriate evidence, will then be considered during the processing of the existing complaint. Proper handling of spin-off allegations is important to the Commission because it involves the overall quality of the complaints process. Individuals who do not follow the process set out in the Management Directive for allegations of dissatisfaction will have such complaints dismissed by the agency or by the Commission. The procedure to be used will ensure that any evidence of discrimination or improper handling will be considered as part of the claim before the agency or Commission without unnecessarily adding complaints to the system.

The Commission also proposes to add a dismissal provision to section 1614.107 permitting an agency to dismiss a complaint where it finds a clear pattern of abuse of the EEO process through strict application of the criteria set forth in Commission decisions. The proposed section codifies the Commission's decision in Buren v. USPS, Request No. 05850299 (1985). The Commission has stated that it has the inherent power to control and prevent abuse of its processes, orders or procedures. It is within the Commission's purview to determine that either complainants or agencies are engaging in conduct that constitutes a scheme designed to frustrate the administrative process. The Commission also has recognized that dismissing complaints for abuse of process should be done only on rare occasions because of the strong policy in favor of preserving complainants' EEO rights whenever possible. Kleinman v. Postmaster General, Request No. 05940579 (1994). The Commission believes that evaluating complaints for dismissal for abuse of process requires careful deliberation and application of strict criteria. Agencies must analyze whether a complainant's prior behavior evidences an ulterior purpose to abuse the EEO process. Evidence of numerous complaint filings, in and of itself, is an insufficient basis for making such a finding. Hooks v. USPS, Appeal No. 01953852 (1995). However, multiple filings combined with the nature of the subject matter of the complaints, lack of specificity in the allegations, and allegations involving matters previously raised may be considered in determining whether a complainant has engaged in a pattern of abuse of the EEO process. Goatcher v. USPS, Request No. 05950557 (1996). The Commission proposes to add the dismissal provision based on abuse of process, as well as the dismissal for spin-off complaints, because it believes that they will improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the EEO process. In addition, dealing summarily with abusive complaints will make the process fairer for agencies that must process complaints and for complainants who raise bona fide allegations by focusing resources on bona fide allegations.

Offer of Resolution

The Commission proposes to add a provision to the procedures permitting agencies to make offers of resolution to complainants as long as they are made at least 30 days prior to the hearing. Offers of resolution must be in writing and must explain to the complainant the possible consequences of failing to accept the offer. Complainants will have 30 days to consider the offer and decide whether to accept it. If a complainant is represented by an attorney at the time that the offer is made and fails to accept an offer of resolution, and the decision on the complaint is not more favorable than the offer, then, except where the interest of justice will not be served, the complainant will not receive payment from the agency of attorney's fees or costs incurred after the date of rejection or the expiration of the 30-day period of the offer of resolution if there has been no rejection. If the offer of resolution is not accepted within thirty days it is deemed to have been rejected. Failure to accept an offer of resolution will not preclude an agency from making other offers of resolution or either party from seeking to negotiate a settlement of the complaint at any time. If an agency believes that it has made a fair offer to an unrepresented complainant who later obtains representation and seeks to avoid further liability for attorney's fees, the agency can make a new offer in writing at that time.

The Commission proposes the offer of resolution procedure, in part, in response to comments from the agencies requesting that the failure to accept a certified offer of full relief dismissal provision be retained or modified. The Commission wishes to encourage resolution of complaints at all times in the complaint process and believes the proposed offer of resolution provision will provide incentive for agencies and complainants to resolve complaints. The Commission seeks comment on the offer of resolution proposal, particularly on the interest of justice exception to the preclusion of costs and fees. The Commission believes that the interest of justice standard in the proposal will apply to those situations in which an administrative judge determines that it would be unfair to preclude payment of attorney's fees and costs.

Fragmentation of Complaints

The Commission seeks public comment on whether regulatory changes are necessary to correct the problem of fragmented processing of EEO claims. A recurring problem found by the Federal Sector Workgroup was that many agencies do not distinguish between allegations in support of a legal claim and the legal claim itself. As a result, some claims involving a number of different allegations are fragmented or separated. What should be one legal claim then becomes a number of miscellaneous events, losing its character as a claim. A hypothetical example would be a harassment claim where a pattern of incidents are used to support a claim, but the separate incidents would not constitute a legally cognizable claim of discrimination. As a result of fragmentation, the number of discrimination complaints by federal employees is unnecessarily multiplied and cognizable claims are fragmented to such an extent that potentially valid claims become meaningless. The Commission plans on amending its Management Directive to address this problem and seeks comment on what, if any, regulatory changes are necessary to correct this problem.

Partial Dismissals

The Commission proposes changes to the regulations to eliminate interlocutory appeals of partial dismissals of complaints. Currently, where an agency dismisses part of a complaint, but not the entire complaint, the complainant has the right to immediately appeal the partial dismissal to EEOC. The Commission provided for interlocutory appeals of partial dismissals in Part 1614, hoping to streamline the process and avoid holding two or more hearings on the same complaint. Multiple hearings could have occurred absent an interlocutory appeal when EEOC reversed an agency's partial dismissal after a hearing was held on the rest of the complaint. The Commission believes that this result can be accomplished without the unintended delays of complaints or fragmentation of complaints that may have resulted from the current provision.

The Commission proposes to amend section 1614.401 to remove the right to immediately appeal the dismissal of a portion of a complaint. In addition, the Commission proposes to add a paragraph to the dismissals section, section 1614.107, explaining how to process complaints where a portion of the complaint, but not the entire complaint, meets one or more of the standards for dismissal contained in that section. In those circumstances, the agency will document the file with its reasons for believing that the portion of the complaint meets the standards for dismissal and will investigate the remainder of the complaint. If the complainant requests a hearing from an administrative judge, the administrative judge will evaluate the reasons given by the agency for believing a portion of the complaint meets the standards for dismissal before holding the hearing. If the administrative judge believes that all or a part of the agency's reasons are not well taken, the entire complaint or all of the portions not meeting the standards for dismissal will continue in the hearing process. The parties may conduct discovery to develop a record for all portions of the complaint continuing in the hearing process. The administrative judge's decision on the partial dismissal will become part of the final decision on the complaint, which either party may appeal to EEOC, in accordance with proposed section 1614.401. Where a complainant requests a final decision from the agency without a hearing, the agency will issue a decision addressing all claims in the complaint, including its rationale for dismissing claims, if any, and its findings on the merits of the remainder of the complaint. The complainant may appeal the agency's final decision, including any partial dismissals, to the EEOC.

Hearings

The Commission proposes four changes to the hearings process. First, the Commission proposes to amend section 1614.108, by adding a new paragraph (g), providing that complainants who wish to have a hearing on their complaints after the 180 days period for investigation has expired would be required to submit requests for hearings directly to EEOC, rather than to their agencies, as is the current practice. Agencies will be required to inform complainants in their acknowledgment letters of the EEOC office and address where a request for hearing is to be sent. When requesting a hearing from EEOC, complainants will be required at the same time to send a copy of the request for a hearing to their agencies' EEO offices. Upon receipt of a request for hearing, EEOC would request that the agency provide copies of the complaint file to EEOC and, if not previously provided, to the complainant. The Commission believes that the proposed change will expedite the complaint process. Complainants will communicate directly with EEOC with copies to their agency, rather than through their agency whose only function was to serve as a conduit for getting the request to EEOC. In addition, the proposed change would alleviate concerns that agencies are not responding to requests for hearings quickly enough by allowing the parties to communicate directly with EEOC.

Second, the Commission proposes to specify in the regulation at section 1614.109(b) that administrative judges have the authority to dismiss complaints during the hearing process for all of the reasons contained in the dismissal section, 29 CFR 1614.107. Currently, administrative judges do not have the authority to dismiss complaints that are in the hearing process, but will remand a complaint back to the agency for dismissal, where appropriate. The proposed change would eliminate an unnecessary layer by giving the administrative judge the authority to dismiss without the need for remanding the complaint to the agency.

Third, the Commission proposes to add a provision permitting administrative judges to issue a final decision without a hearing where they determine, even though material facts remain in dispute, that there is sufficient information in the record to decide the case, that the material facts in dispute can be decided on the basis of the written record, that there are no credibility issues that would require live testimony in order to evaluate a witness' demeanor and that the case lacks merit. A new paragraph 1614.109(f)(4) would contain this provision, which would supplement administrative judges' existing authority to issue summary judgment decisions currently contained in 29 CFR 1614.109(e). While the decision is like a dismissal in that it will result in a ruling against the complainant, it is set out as a separate subsection because it will be an adjudication on the merits of the complaints.

Finally, the Commission proposes to amend the regulations to provide that administrative judges issue final decisions on complaints that have been referred to them for a hearing. Complainants or agencies could appeal administrative judges' final decisions to EEOC. Agencies would continue to issue final decisions in cases where the complainants request an immediate final decision without a hearing.

The Commission believes that allowing agencies to reject or modify an administrative judge's findings of fact and conclusions of law leads to an unavoidable conflict of interest. This is particularly true because those cases have been referred to a neutral third party, an EEOC administrative judge, to hear the dispute. Historically, agencies have rejected or modified a majority of administrative judges' findings of discrimination, but have adopted nearly all findings of no discrimination. In fiscal year 1996, Commission administrative judges issued 3,083 decisions, of which 284, or 9.2%, found discrimination. Agencies accepted only 101 of those decisions and rejected 178, or 62.7%. Conversely, of the 2,799 findings of no discrimination, agencies rejected only four or 0.1%. The Commission does not have available current information containing the percentage of agency decisions it accepts or rejects on appeal following administrative judge decisions. The Commission believes that the proposed change will address the perception of unfairness and conflict of interest in agencies deciding complaints of discrimination against them. In addition, this proposal eliminates a layer of review and permits decision-making at an earlier state, central goals of the National Performance Review, thus making the process more efficient.

Of those federal agencies that commented on the draft regulation when the regulation was coordinated under Exec. Order No. 12067 (1978), some supported the proposal to make the decision of the administrative judge final. A number of agencies opposed it, however, chiefly arguing that the Commission did not have authority to allow administrative judges to issue final decisions, while some agencies believed that the administrative judge could only issue a final decision if the hearing was the first level of an appeal to the Commission. The Commission believes that it has broad authority to restructure the discrimination complaint process for federal employee complaints and that administrative judges can issue decisions as proposed.

Section 717(b) of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 authorizes the Commission to ''issue such rules, regulations, orders, and instructions as it deems necessary and appropriate to carry out its responsibilities under this section.'' 42 U.S.C. § 2000e–16(b). Such broad language has been interpreted by the courts to constitute a delegation of legislative rulemaking authority. E.g., Mourning v. Family Publications Service, Inc., 411 U.S. 356 (1973); Public Utilities Commission of California v. United States, 355 U.S. 534, 542–43 n. 4 (1958).

In 1972 Congress gave this rulemaking authority to the Civil Service Commission, which was the predecessor to the EEOC in having responsibility for enforcing the employment discrimination laws in the federal sector. In so doing, Congress made it clear that it was granting the Commission complete authority to restructure the complaint process to ensure protection of the interests of all parties involved in the process. It explained:

> One feature of the present equal employment opportunity program which deserves special scrutiny by the Civil Service Commission is the complaint process. The procedure under the present system, intended to provide for the informal disposition of complaints, may have denied employees adequate opportunity for impartial investigation and resolution of complaints.
> Under present procedures, in most cases, each agency is still responsible for investigating and judging itself. Although provision is made for the appointment of an outside examiner, the examiner does not have the authority to conduct an independent investigation, and his conclusions and findings are in the nature of recommendations to the agency head who makes the final agency determination on whether there is, in fact, discrimination in that particular case. The only appeal is to the Board of Appeals and Review in the Civil Service Commission.
> The testimony before the Labor Subcommittee reflected a general lack of confidence in the effectiveness of the complaint procedure on the part of Federal employees. Complainants have indicated skepticism regarding the Commission's record in obtaining just resolution of complaints and adequate remedies. This has, in turn, discouraged persons from filing complaints with the Commission for fear that doing so will only result in antagonizing their supervisors and impairing any future hope of advancement. The new authority given to the Civil Service Commission in the bill is intended to enable the Commission to reconsider its entire complaint structure and the relationships between the employee, agency, and Commission in these cases.

S. Rept. No. 92–415 (1971), reprinted in Legislative History of the Equal Employment Opportunity Act of 1972, 410 at 423 (1972) (emphasis added).

In 1979, the authority for enforcement of the federal employee complaint process was transferred from the Civil Service Commission to EEOC. In proposing this transfer, the President stated:

> Transfer of the Civil Service Commission's equal employment opportunity responsibilities to EEOC is needed to ensure that: (1) Federal employees have the same rights and remedies as those in the private sector and in state and local government; (2) Federal agencies meet the same standards as are required of other employers; and (3) potential conflicts between an agency's equal employment opportunity and personnel management functions are minimized.... The Civil Service Commission has in the past been lethargic in enforcing fair employment requirements within the Federal government.

Hearings Before a Subcommittee of the Committee on Government Operations, Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978 (Equal Employment Opportunity), at 6–7 (1978). In its report on the Plan, the Office of Management and Budget stated that ''The Civil Service Commission is expected to be lawmaker, prosecutor, judge and jury on employment discrimination in the Federal workforce. Organizational deficiencies like these inevitably lead to less rigorous compliance.'' Hearings, Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978 at 186. In addition, OMB stated that ''[t]he Civil Service Commission's regulations concerning the filing of class action complaints are highly restrictive.'' Hearings, Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978 at 193. The type of organization conflict of interest that the Commission seeks to eliminate in this proposal, where an agency both takes an action and then serves as the final decision maker on the complaint, has been of concern for years.

By proposing these changes, the EEOC is doing precisely what the Congress envisioned would be done, i.e., the Commission is reconsidering the complaint structure and the relative positions of the employee, the agency and the Commission. The language of section 717, its legislative history, and the transfer of that responsibility to EEOC under Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978 all confirm that the EEOC has been given the broadest possible authority to restructure the complaints process for individual and class complaints.

Those agencies that assert that EEOC lacks the authority to change its regulations to make administrative judges' decisions final, or that it can only be done as part of an appellate procedure, rely on section 717(c), 42 U.S.C. § 2000e–16(c). Section 717(c) provides:

> Within thirty days of receipt of notice of final action taken by a department, agency, or unit referred to in subsection 717(a), or by the Civil Service Commission upon an appeal from a decision or order of such department, agency, or unit on a complaint of discrimination, * * * or after one hundred and eighty days from the filing of the initial charge with the department, agency, or unit, until such time as final action may be taken by a department, or unit, an employee or applicant for employment, if aggrieved by the final disposition of his complaint, or by the failure to take final action on his complaint, may file a civil action as provided in section 706, * * *

This language, which permits a federal employee to file suit against the agency alleged to have discriminated, waives the government's sovereign immunity from suit. Chandler v. Roudebush, 425 U.S. 849 (1976); Brown v. GSA, 425 U.S. 820 (1976). Nothing in this statutory language limits EEOC's ability to issue regulations under subsection 717(b) or to structure the administrative process to enhance its effectiveness and fairness. The language delineates when, under the procedures that existed at that time, an individual could file suit in court. There is no indication that Congress also intended to codify any parts of the existing administrative procedures by the language of this sentence. Indeed, the legislative history of section 717 demonstrates that Congress expected the then-Civil Service Commission to make significant changes to the complaint process. The importance of administrative flexibility to improve the complaint process was reaffirmed in 1978 when the President transferred the responsibilities for federal employee complaints to EEOC.

Class Complaints

The Federal Sector Workgroup identified a series of concerns with the class complaint process. It found that despite studies indicating that class-based discrimination may continue to exist in the federal government, recent data reflect that very few class complaints are filed or certified at the administrative level. Only a very small number of cases are brought as class actions and those that are filed generally result in a denial of class certification. While an effective administrative process for class complaints offers several advantages over litigation in federal court, including informality, lower cost, and the speed of resolution, the Workgroup found there is a perception the current process does not adequately address class-based discrimination in the federal government. As a result, complainants often have elected to pursue their complaints in federal court.

Class actions play a particularly vital role in the enforcement of the equal employment laws. They are an essential mechanism for attacking broad patterns of workplace discrimination and providing relief to victims of discriminatory policies or systemic practices. The courts have long recognized that class actions ''are powerful stimuli to enforce Title VII,'' providing for the ''removal of artificial, arbitrary, and unnecessary barriers to employment when the barriers operate invidiously to discriminate on the basis of racial or other impermissible classification.'' Wetzel v. Liberty Mutual Ins. Co., 508 F.2d 239, 254 (3d Cir.), cert denied, 421 U.S. 1011 (1975). The class action device exists, in large part, to vindicate the interests of civil rights plaintiffs. See 5 James W. Moore, Moore's Federal Practice § 23.43[1][a], at 23–191 (3d ed. 1997).

These same policies apply with equal force in the federal sector. Accordingly, we propose several changes to strengthen the class complaint process. The purpose of these changes is to ensure that complaints raising class issues are not unjustifiably denied class certification in the administrative process and that class cases are resolved under appropriate legal standards consistent with the principles applied by federal courts. Where a class of individuals have been affected by a policy or practice, it is far more efficient to address those concerns in one action rather than requiring numerous individual complaints. These proposed changes seek to make the class complaint process fairer by allowing individuals to seek class certification at any reasonable stage in the process. The class implications of a complaint may not be apparent until the complainant receives the investigative file or information in discovery that would indicate that the agency has acted in a way that will have implications for a class. In addition, to further address the concerns identified by the Workgroup, the Commission has undertaken a pilot program in which all decisions on class certification will be made centrally by the Complaint Adjudication Division of its Office of Federal Operations to explore possible operational changes.

The Commission proposes four regulatory changes to the class complaint procedures found at 29 CFR 1614.204. The Commission proposes to revise section 1614.204(b) to provide that a complainant may move for class certification at any reasonable point in the process when it becomes apparent that there are class implications raised in an individual complaint. If a complainant moves for class certification after completing counseling, the complainant will not be required to return to the counseling stage. Some agencies who commented on this proposal when it was coordinated under Exec. Order No. 12067 supported the change but asked that the regulation define ''reasonable point in the process'' and indicate what criteria would be used to determine that a complaint has class implications. Some agencies opposed the change, arguing that it would entail additional investigative costs and invite abuse by complainants seeking to bypass the counseling process by making frivolous class allegations. They maintained that a complainant should have to elect between a class or an individual claim at the pre-complaint stage. Others objected only to eliminating counseling, as that it is how the complainant is informed of his or her rights and responsibilities as class agent.

The Commission believes that the proposed change is an important step toward removing unnecessary barriers to class certification of complaints that are properly of a class nature. The Commission has consistently recognized that its decisions on class certification must be guided by the complainant's lack of access to pre-certification discovery; this is different from the situation of a Rule 23 plaintiff who does have access to pre-certification discovery on class issues. Similarly, often an individual complainant will not have reason to know at the counseling stage that the challenged action actually reflects an agency policy or practice generally applicable to a class of similarly situated individuals. The Commission intends that ''reasonable point in the process'' be interpreted to allow a complainant to seek class certification when he or she knows or should know that the complaint has class implications, i.e., it potentially involves questions of fact common to a class and is typical of the claims of a class. Normally, this point would be no later than the end of discovery at the hearing stage. It would be the responsibility of the agency or administrative judge, as appropriate, to ensure that the class agent is advised of his or her obligations at this time. The Commission believes it would be impracticable and unproductive to require the complainant to return to counseling at this stage.

The Commission proposes to amend section 1614.204(d) to provide that administrative judges would issue final decisions on whether a class complaint will be accepted (or certified) or dismissed. Currently, administrative judges make recommendations to agencies on acceptance or dismissal. The Commission particularly invites comment on this proposal. Agencies who commented on this proposal when it was coordinated under Exec. Order No. 12067 said they either supported or opposed it for the same reasons they gave with respect to the proposal for administrative judges to issue final decisions on individual complaints. Some agencies said they supported it only if the agency is given the right to appeal a certification decision. Under the Commission's proposal, an agency would have such a right under section 1614.401(b), which provides that an agency may appeal an administrative judge's final decision. The Commission also seeks public comment on whether to make administrative judges' decisions on the merits final in class cases, consistent with the proposal to allow administrative judges to issue final decisions in section 1614.109(h).

In addition, the Commission proposes to amend section 1614.204(g)(2) to require that administrative judges must approve class settlement agreements pursuant to the ''fair and reasonable'' standard, even when no class member has asserted an objection to the settlement. Several agency commenters under Exec. Order No. 12067 supported this proposal while others disagreed, arguing that it would add an unnecessary layer of review and that adequate safeguards exist in section 1614.204(g)(4), which gives dissatisfied class members the right to petition to vacate a settlement, and 1614.204(a)(2), which requires the class agent to fairly and adequately represent the class. The Commission believes this proposed change is necessary to protect the interests of the class. As one agency commenter noted, class agents sometimes seek to settle their individual claims without full regard for the interests of the class. The change would make the regulations consistent with the practice in federal courts where the court must approve any settlement of a class case under a fair and reasonable standard.

Finally, the Commission proposes to amend section 1614.204(l)(3) to clarify the burdens of proof applicable to individual class members who believe they are entitled to relief. The proposed change would make explicit that the burdens enunciated in Teamsters v. United States, 431 U.S. 324 (1977), apply. In Teamsters, the Court stated that where a finding of discrimination has been made, there is a presumption of discrimination as to every individual who can show he or she is a member of the class and was affected by the discrimination during the relevant period of time. Agencies then would be required to show by clear and convincing evidence that any class member is not entitled to relief, as is provided currently in sections 1614.501 (b) and (c).

Appeals

In addition to the proposal to allow complainants or agencies to appeal administrative judges' final decisions, noted above, the Commission proposes to revise the briefing schedules for appeals to EEOC, to add a provision permitting the Office of Federal Operations to sanction parties for failure to comply with the regulations, to change the standard of review for some appeals, and to revise the process for seeking reconsideration of appeals decisions. The Commission proposes to amend section 1614.403 of the regulations to require that complainants submit any statement or brief in support of an appeal of dismissal of a complaint to EEOC within 30 days of receipt of the dismissal. Any statement or brief in support of an appeal of a final decision on a complaint would have to be submitted to EEOC within 30 days of filing the notice of appeal. Statements or briefs in opposition to appeals would have to be served on the opposing party within 30 days of receipt of a statement or brief in support of an appeal. The Commission will strictly apply appellate time frames. Currently, complainants have 30 days after filing the notice of appeal to submit a statement or brief. The Commission believes that 30 days is sufficient time to file briefs in procedural cases (cases that are dismissed by the agency or the administrative judge) because those cases usually do not raise voluminous factual issues. On the other hand, appeals of final decisions on the merits of cases generally require a thorough review of the record and warrant additional time to formulate arguments to support the appeals. In connection with the briefing schedule changes, the Commission proposes to amend the regulation to require agencies to submit the complaint file to EEOC within 30 days of notification that the complainant has filed an appeal or within 30 days of submission of an appeal by the agency.

The Commission proposes to amend section 1614.404 to add a paragraph authorizing the Office of Federal Operations to take appropriate action where a party to an appeal fails without good cause shown to comply with the appellate procedures or to respond fully and in timely fashion to a request for information. The proposal would allow the Office of Federal Operations to draw an adverse inference that requested information a party failed to provide would have reflected unfavorably on that party, to consider the matters to which the requested information pertains to be established in favor of the opposing party, to issue a decision fully or partially in favor of the opposing party, or to take such other actions as appropriate.

The Commission proposes to amend section 1614.405 of the regulations to provide that decisions on appeal from final decisions by administrative judges after a hearing will be based on a substantial evidence standard of review, but review of all other decisions will be based on a de novo standard of review. The version of the NPRM circulated for interagency coordination had included a clearly erroneous standard of review for administrative judges' factual findings; this was changed to the substantial evidence standard now in the NPRM at the request of agencies, who took the position that the clearly erroneous standard was too restrictive. No new evidence will be considered on appeal unless the evidence was not reasonably available during the hearing process. It should be emphasized that the substantial evidence standard does not preclude meaningful review of factual findings. However, applying the de novo standard of review to the factual findings in administrative judges' final decisions after hearings would be an inefficient use of EEOC's limited resources. In addition, since EEOC's Office of Federal Operations did not see and hear the witnesses, it would not be in a position to second-guess the administrative judge during the appellate process, especially with respect to credibility determinations based on a witness' demeanor. Factual findings based on documentary evidence are more susceptible to review in the appellate process.

Finally, the Commission proposes to amend sections 1614.405 and 1614.407 to model its reconsideration process after the process used by the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB). Reconsideration is an extra layer of review that is duplicative and time-consuming but that does little to improve the complaints process. The Commission denies the majority of requests for reconsideration, whether in procedural or merits cases. The purpose of this change is to enable the Commission to direct more resources to decision-making at the first appellate level, focusing on policy issues it deems important and developing a consistent body of decisional law on those issues. Restructuring the reconsideration process will permit the Commissioners to become more involved in the initial appellate decision. This proposal would also effectuate one of the central goals of the National Performance Review by, in many cases permitting decision-making at an earlier stage. The Commission will retain its discretion to reconsider any decision under section 1614.407(a).

Most agency commenters who commented on this proposal when it was coordinated under Exec. Order No. 12067 opposed eliminating the right to seek reconsideration. They urged retention of the right to request reconsideration as a safeguard for agencies against mistakes and inconsistencies by the Office of Federal Operations. It would be unfair to deny agencies this last opportunity for recourse, they maintained, particularly if administrative judges' decisions are made final and given greater deference. They argued the change would unjustifiably tip the balance in favor of complainants, who have the right to file suit in federal court and receive a de novo review. As they noted, agencies do not have the right to any court review if dissatisfied with a Commission decision. Several commenters also argued in favor of preservation of the right to request reconsideration of at least those decisions involving important legal issues or having a significant impact on agency policies or programs beyond the case at hand. In response to these comments the Commission has provided standards for parties to meet in seeking reconsideration. While reconsideration will continue to be discretionary, parties can seek reconsideration where there is a clear mistake of fact or law or where the decision will have a far ranging impact on the agency.

Reformation of the reconsideration process is an important component of the proposed federal sector reforms. It will provide the resources to improve the timeliness and quality of the Commission's Office of Federal Operations decisions across the board. The broad availability of reconsideration has not significantly enhanced the overall decision-making process. Many requests are simply a reargument of previously unsuccessful positions. They are sometimes used only to delay the finality of an adverse decision. The overwhelming majority of requests are denied. For example, in fiscal year 1997, requests for reconsideration resulting in a reversal of an order on the merits occurred in only seven instances or about 4% of the cases. For fiscal years 1996, 1995, 1994 and 1993, the figures were 5%, 2%, 2% and 3%, respectively.

To the extent agencies have legitimate complaints about erroneous Office of Federal Operations decisions, the Commission believes the principal remedy is to seek to improve the quality timeliness and consistency of the decision-making process as a whole. This is best accomplished by shifting resources to the appeal stage. Although the agencies view it as unfair that, unlike complainants, they cannot go to court if they are dissatisfied with the administrative process, the Commission does not believe that this argument supports adding another layer to the process. Regardless of how the reconsideration process is structured, complainants will still have the right to obtain court review while agencies will not. This inherent aspect of the process does not outweigh the need for finality at an earlier stage and the value of a more streamlined process. Finally, some agencies have argued that reconsideration is an important step to ensure full consideration of the agency position in cases involving significant legal issues or broader consequences for agency policies and programs. In the first instance, it is incumbent upon the agency to identify and thoroughly address such policy or legal issues in its brief at the appellate stage so that the Commission can give the case the level of scrutiny warranted at the most appropriate level of review. Moreover, the proposed standards address this concern.

Attorney's Fees

The Commission proposes to amend the attorney's fees section of the regulations to authorize administrative judges to calculate reasonable attorney's fees in cases where a hearing is requested. Currently, administrative judges decide the entitlement to attorney's fees. Agencies, however, calculate the amount of the award. The Commission believes that administrative judges are in a better position to render an impartial decision on the reasonableness of the fees request. They have heard the evidence and can assess the complexity of the case as presented by the attorney as the basis of the award. Moreover, because administrative judges are neutral third parties to the dispute, their attorney's fees calculations will not be perceived as biased in favor of one party or the other. This proposal has been questioned by some agencies because administrative judges generally have not issued such awards previously. In light of these concerns, the Commission will issue guidance to administrative judges on the calculation of reasonable attorney's fees. The Commission will consult with other agencies prior to issuing the guidance.

In addition, the Commission proposes to amend section 1614.501(e)(1)(iv) to provide that an award of attorney's fees may include compensation for the time spent during the counseling period including any ADR process. The Commission believes that the current regulation, which limits attorney's fees awards to fees for work performed after a formal complaint is filed, could serve as a disincentive to participate in alternative dispute resolution, which often occurs during the counseling period, or otherwise settle a case during counseling.

During inter-agency coordination of the proposed rule, many agencies expressed opposition to this proposal to provide for attorney's fees awards for pre-complaint activities, arguing that providing for attorney's fees will formalize the informal counseling process and make it more legalistic and adversarial. While the Commission believes that the availability of attorney's fees will permit settlement early on, agencies believe that it will draw out the process. The Commission proposes the change, in part, to make the EEO complaint remedies consistent with the remedies available to Federal employees in other forums. The Office of Personnel Management's (OPM) Back Pay Act regulations provide for the payment of attorney's fees without a temporal restriction in cases correcting unjustified or unwarranted personnel actions. 5 CFR 550.807. In other words, OPM's regulations provide for full attorney's fees, including cases resolved during the informal stage (first step) of the grievance process. Likewise, the Merit System Protection Board's (MSPB) regulations do not contain any restriction on attorney's fees. 5 CFR 1201.37. The Commission does not believe that federal employees who have been discriminated against should receive a lesser remedy than federal employees who prevail in grievances and MSPB appeals. The Commission is particularly interested in comments on this proposal.

In addition to the proposed changes outlined above, the Commission proposes to amend section 1614.103(b) of the regulations to include the Public Health Service Commissioned Corps and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Commissioned Corps in the coverage of Part 1614. This inclusion is consistent with prior Commission decisions and with the determination of the Solicitor General that Commissioned Corps member are covered by federal sector anti-discrimination statutes.

In proposing these changes, the Commission wishes to reiterate its intention to monitor the federal employee complaint process and to propose changes that may become necessary to correct problems that may develop. In order to better monitor the system, the Commission will examine the data that it maintains on complaints and appeals to ensure that appropriate information about appeals from final decisions, attorney's fees awarded and other costs exists.

Regulatory Procedures

Executive Order 12866

In promulgating this notice of proposed rulemaking, the Commission has adhered to the regulatory philosophy and applicable principles of regulation set forth in section 1 of the Executive Order 12866, Regulatory Planning and Review. This regulation has been designated as a significant regulation and reviewed by OMB consistent with the Executive Order.

Regulatory Flexibility Act

In addition, the Commission certifies under 5 U.S.C. § 605(b), enacted by the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96–354), that this rule will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, because it applies exclusively to employees and agencies and departments of the federal government. For this reason, a regulatory flexibility analysis is not required.

Paperwork Reduction Act

This regulation contains no information collection requirements subject to review by the Office of Management and Budget under the Paperwork Reduction Act (44 U.S.C. chapter 35).

List of Subjects in 29 CFR Part 1614

(b)(1) At the initial counseling session, Counselors must advise individuals orally and in writing of their rights and responsibilities, including the right to request a hearing or an immediate final decision after an investigation by the agency in accordance with § 1614.108(f), election rights pursuant to §§ 1614.301 and 1614.302, the right to file a notice of intent to sue pursuant to § 1614.201(a) and a lawsuit under the ADEA instead of an administrative complaint of age discrimination under this part, the duty to mitigate damages, administrative and court time frames, and that only the matter(s) raised in precomplaint counseling (or issues like or related to issues raised in pre-complaint counseling) may be alleged in a subsequent complaint filed with the agency. * * *

6. Section 1614.107 is amended by redesignating paragraphs (a) through (h) as paragraphs (a)(1) through (8), redesignating the introductory text as paragraph (a) introductory text and revising it, revising paragraph (a)(8) and adding new paragraph (a)(9) and paragraph (b) to read as follows:

§ 1614.107 Dismissals of complaints.

(a) Prior to a request for a hearing in a case, the agency shall dismiss an entire complaint:

* * * * *

(8) That alleges dissatisfaction with the processing of a previously filed complaint; or

(9) Where the agency strictly applies the criteria set forth in Commission decisions and finds a clear pattern of misuse of the EEO process.

(b) Where the agency believes that some but not all of the claims in a complaint should be dismissed for the reasons contained in paragraphs (a)(1) through (9) of this section, the agency shall notify the complainant in writing of its determination, the rationale for that determination and that those allegations will not be investigated, and shall place a copy of the notice in the investigative file. A determination under this paragraph is reviewable by an administrative judge if a hearing is requested on the remainder of the complaint, but is not appealable until a final decision is issued on the remainder of the complaint.

7. Section 1614.108 is amended by revising paragraph (f) and adding a new paragraph (g) to read as follows:

§ 1614.108 Investigation of complaints.

* * * * *

(f) Within 180 days from the filing of the complaint, within the time period contained in an order from the Office of Federal Operations on an appeal from a dismissal, or within any period of extension provided for in paragraph (e) of this section, the agency shall provide the complainant with a copy of the investigative file, and shall notify the complainant that, within 30 days of receipt of the investigative file, the complainant has the right to request a hearing and final decision from an administrative judge or may receive an immediate final decision pursuant to § 1614.110 from the agency with which the complaint was filed.

(g) Where the complainant has received the notice required in paragraph (f) of this section or at any time after 180 days have elapsed from the filing of the complaint, the complainant may request a hearing by submitting a request for a hearing directly to the EEOC office indicated in the agency's acknowledgment letter. The complainant shall send a copy of the request for a hearing to the agency EEO office. Upon receipt of a request for a hearing, EEOC will request that the agency provide copies of the complaint file to EEOC and, if not previously provided, the complainant.

8. Section 1614.109 is amended by revising paragraph (a), redesignating paragraphs (b) through (g) as paragraphs (d) through (i), adding new paragraphs (b) and (c), revising the introductory text of redesignated paragraph (f)(3), in redesignated paragraph (g) removing the phrases ''findings and conclusions'' and adding, in their place, the words ''final decisions'', adding a new paragraph (g)(4), and revising paragraph (i) to read as follows:

(a) When a complainant requests a hearing, the Commission shall appoint an administrative judge to conduct a hearing in accordance with this section. Any hearing will be conducted by an administrative judge or hearing examiner with appropriate security clearances. Where the administrative judge determines that the complainant is raising or intends to pursue issues like or related to those raised in the complaint, but which the agency has not had an opportunity to address, the administrative judge may remand any such issue for counseling in accordance with § 1614.105 or for such other processing as ordered by the administrative judge.

(b) Dismissals. Administrative judges shall dismiss complaints pursuant to § 1614.107.

(c) Offer of resolution. Any time after the initial counseling session but more than 30 days prior to the hearing, the agency may make an offer of resolution of the complaint to the complainant. The offer of resolution shall be in writing and shall include a notice explaining the possible consequences of failing to accept the offer. The complainant shall have 30 days from receipt of the offer of resolution to accept or reject it. If the complainant is represented by an attorney when the offer is made and fails to accept an offer of resolution, and the final decision on the complaint is not more favorable than the offer, then, except where the interest of justice would not be served, the complainant shall not receive payment from the agency of attorney's fees or costs incurred after the date of rejection or the expiration of the 30-day period of the offer of resolution if no rejection has been made. An acceptance of an offer must be in writing and will be timely if postmarked or received within the 30-day period. Where a complainant fails to accept an offer of resolution, an agency may make other offers of resolution or either party may seek to negotiate a settlement of the complaint at any time.

(f) * * *

(3) When the complainant, or the agency against which a complaint is filed, or its employees fail without good cause shown to respond fully and in timely fashion to an order of an administrative judge, or requests for the investigative file, for documents, records, comparative data, statistics, affidavits, or the attendance of witness(es), the administrative judge shall, in appropriate circumstances:

* * * * *

(g) * * *

(4) Where the administrative judge determines, even though material facts remain in dispute, that there is sufficient information in the record to decide the case, that the material facts in dispute can be decided on the basis of the written record, that there are no credibility issues that would require live testimony in order to evaluate a witness' demeanor and that the case lacks merit, the administrative judge may issue a final decision without a hearing.

* * * * *

(i) Final decisions by administrative judges. Unless the administrative judge makes a written determination that good cause exists for extending the time for issuing a final decision, within 180 days of receipt by EEOC of a request for a hearing, an administrative judge shall issue a final decision on the complaint, and shall order appropriate remedies and relief where discrimination is found with regard to the matter that gave rise to the complaint. The administrative judge shall send copies of the entire record, including the transcript, and the final decision to the parties by certified mail, return receipt requested. The final decision shall contain notice of the right of either party to appeal to the Commission, notice of the right of the complainant to file a civil action in Federal district court, the name of the proper defendant in any such lawsuit and the applicable time limits for appeals and lawsuits. A copy of EEOC Form 573 shall be attached to the decision.

9. Section 1614.110 is amended by revising the title and first and second sentence to read as follows:

§ 1614.110 Final decisions by agencies.

Within 60 days of receiving notification that a complainant has requested an immediate decision from the agency, or within 60 days of the end of the 30-day period for the complainant to request a hearing or an immediate final decision where the complainant has not requested either a hearing or a decision, the agency shall issue a final decision. The final decision shall consist of findings by the agency on the merits of each issue in the complaint, or, as appropriate, the rationale for dismissing any claims in the complaint and, when discrimination is found, appropriate remedies and relief in accordance with subpart E of this part.* * *

10. Section 1614.204 is amended by revising paragraph (b), removing the words ''recommend that the agency'' from paragraphs (d)(2), (d)(3), (d)(4), and (d)(5), removing the word ''recommend'' and replacing it with the word ''decide'' in paragraph (d)(6), revising paragraph (d)(7), paragraph (e)(1), paragraph (g)(2) and paragraph (l)(3) to read as follows:

§ 1614.204 Class complaints.

* * * * *

(b) Pre-complaint processing. An employee or applicant who wishes to file a class complaint must seek counseling and be counseled in accordance with § 1614.105. A complainant may move for class certification at any reasonable point in the process when it becomes apparent that there are class implications to the claim raised in an individual complaint. If a complainant moves for class certification after completing the counseling process contained in § 1614.105, no additional counseling is required.

(d) * * *

(7) The administrative judge shall transmit his or her decision to accept or dismiss a complaint to the agency and the agent. The dismissal of a class complaint shall inform the agent either that the complaint is being filed on that date as an individual complaint of discrimination and will be processed under subpart A or that the complaint is also dismissed as an individual complaint in accordance with § 1614.107. In addition, it shall inform the agent of the right to appeal the dismissal of the class complaint to the Office of Federal Operations or to file a civil action and shall include EEOC Form 573, Notice of Appeal/Petition.

(e) (1) Within 15 days of receiving notice that the administrative judge has accepted a class complaint or a reasonable time frame specified by the administrative judge, the agency shall use reasonable means, such as delivery, mailing to last known address or distribution, to notify all class members of the acceptance of the class complaint.

* * * * *

(g) * * *

(2) The complaint may be resolved by agreement of the agency and the agent at any time as long as the administrative judge finds the agreement to be fair and reasonable.

* * * * *

(3) When discrimination is found in the final decision and a class member believes that he or she is entitled to individual relief, the class member may file a written claim with the head of the agency or its EEO Director within 30 days of receipt of notification by the agency of its final decision. The claim must include a specific, detailed showing that the claimant is a class member who was affected by a personnel action or matter resulting from the discriminatory policy or practice, and that this discriminatory action took place within the period of time for which the agency found class-wide discrimination in its final decision. Where a finding of discrimination against a class has been made, there shall be a presumption of discrimination as to each member of the class. The agency must show by clear and convincing evidence that any class member is not entitled to relief. The period of time for which the agency finds class-wide discrimination shall begin not more than 45 days prior to the agent's initial contact with the Counselor and shall end not later than the date when the agency eliminates the policy or practice found to be discriminatory in the agency decision. The agency shall issue a final decision on each such claim within 90 days of filing. Such decision must include a notice of the right to file an appeal or a civil action in accordance with subpart D of this part and the applicable time limits.

11. Section 1614.401 is amended by redesignating paragraphs (b) through (d) as paragraphs (c) through (e), revising paragraph (a) and adding a new paragraph (b) to read as follows:

(2) Consider the matters to which the requested information or testimony pertains to be established in favor of the opposing party;

(3) Issue a decision fully or partially in favor of the opposing party; or

(4) Take such other actions as appropriate.

§ 1614.405 Decisions on appeals.

(a) * * * The decision on an appeal from a final decision shall be based on a de novo review, except that the review of the factual findings in a decision by an administrative judge issued pursuant to § 1614.109(h) shall be based on a substantial evidence standard of review. * * *

(b) A decision issued under paragraph (a) of this section is final within the meaning of § 1614.408 unless the Commission reconsiders the case. A party may request reconsideration within 30 days of receipt of a decision of the Commission, which the Commission in its discretion may grant, if the party demonstrates that:

(1) The appellate decision involved a clearly erroneous interpretation of material fact or law; or

(2) The decision will have a substantial impact on the policies, practices or operations of the agency.

15. Section 1614.407 is removed and sections 1614.408 through 1614.410 are redesignated sections 1614.407 through 1614.409.

17. Section 1614.502 is amended by revising the first sentence of paragraph (a), revising paragraph (b) introductory text and paragraph (b)(2) and adding a new paragraph (b)(3) to read as follows:

§ 1614.502 Compliance with final Commission decisions.

(a) Relief ordered in a final decision on appeal to the Commission is mandatory and binding on the agency except as provided below. * * *

(b) Notwithstanding paragraph (a) of this section, when the agency requests reconsideration and the case involves removal, separation, or suspension continuing beyond the date of the request for reconsideration, and when the decision orders retroactive restoration, the agency shall comply with the decision to the extent of the temporary or conditional restoration of the employee to duty status in the position specified by the Commission, pending the outcome of the agency request for reconsideration.

* * * * *

(2) When the agency requests reconsideration, it may delay the payment of any amounts ordered to be paid to the complainant until after the request for reconsideration is resolved. If the agency delays payment of any amount pending the outcome of the request to reconsider and the resolution of the request requires the agency to make the payment, then the agency shall pay interest at the rate set by the IRS for the underpayment of taxes compounded quarterly from the date of the original appellate decision until payment is made.

(3) The agency shall notify the Commission and the employee in writing at the same time it requests reconsideration that the relief it provides is temporary or conditional and, if applicable, that it will delay the payment of any amounts owed but will pay interest as specified in paragraph (b)(2) of this section. Failure of the agency to provide notification will result in the dismissal of the agency's request.
