

two studies) historical control data available for comparison.

Syngenta believes the clinical signs of avermectin-family neurotoxicity seen in neonatal rats are unlikely to be useful predictors of human risk. Young rats are considerably more sensitive to avermectin-type compounds than either adult rats or humans and other primates. (In neonatal rats, unlike humans, the P-glycoprotein levels are only a small fraction of the levels seen in adult rats.) Moreover, data from clinical experience with ivermectin, a related human drug, and studies on ivermectin and abamectin, a related pesticide, demonstrate that both the neonatal rat and the CF-1 mouse overpredict the toxicity of the avermectin-type compounds to humans and to non-human primates.

3. Conclusion. There is a complete toxicity data base for emamectin benzoate and exposure data are complete or are conservatively estimated based on data that reasonably account for potential exposures. Based on these risk assessments, Syngenta concludes that, there is a reasonable certainty that no harm will result to infants and children from aggregate exposure to emamectin benzoate residues.

F. International Tolerances

No Codex maximum residue levels have been established for residues of emamectin benzoate.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Information Collection Activities and Request for Comments

AGENCY: Office of National Drug Control Policy, Executive.

ACTION: Notice.

SUMMARY: The National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign is a program within the Office of National Drug Control Policy (ONDCP). To generate anti-drug awareness, the Media Campaign has partnered with the Advertising Council to create an advertising campaign that encourages local community coalitions to engage in drug prevention activities. In addition, the partnership proposes to collect information from interested adults to determine whether public service advertising increases participation in local coalition activities, the usefulness of local public service announcements, and community response to public service announcements. ONDCP invites comments on the (a) information necessary to accurately measure partnership efforts; (b) quality, utility and clarity of the information; (c) methods that minimize the burden of information collection techniques; and (d) accuracy of the estimated burden of information collection.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Gem Benoza (202) 395-4625.

Dated: March 13, 2002.

Don Maple,

Media Campaign Deputy Director.
