Antidumping Duty Investigation and Countervailing Duty Investigation of Hard Red Spring Wheat from Canada: NAFTA Panel Decision

AGENCY: Import Administration, International Trade Administration, Department of Commerce.

SUMMARY: On June 7, 2005, a North American Free Trade Agreement United States–Canada Binational Panel reviewing the International Trade Commission’s finding that an industry in the United States was materially injured by reason of imports of hard red spring wheat from Canada, remanded the case to the International Trade Commission. On October 5, 2005, the International Trade Commission determined on remand that the domestic industry is neither materially injured by reason of the subject imports nor threatened with such injury. By decision issued on December 12, 2005, the Panel affirmed in full the International Trade Commission’s determination on remand. Consistent with the decision of the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in Timken Co. v. United States, 893 F.2d 337 (Fed. Cir. 1990), the Department of Commerce is notifying the public that the International Trade Commission’s remand determination for hard red spring wheat from Canada and the Notice of Final Panel Action issued by the Panel reviewing the International Trade Commission’s determination, discussed below, are not “in harmony” with the International Trade Commission’s original results.

Respondent parties subsequently challenged the ITC’s Final Injury Determination before the United States–Canada Binational Panel (“Panel”), pursuant to Article 1904 of the North American Free Trade Agreement (“NAFTA”). The parties briefed and argued the case before the Panel, and on June 7, 2005, the Panel issued its decision, remanding in full the ITC’s determination.
